

IAC Attends 2016 MSI Conference

MAY 2016 | Cindy Weiland, RVT, RRT, IAC Chief Compliance Officer represented IAC at the 2016 Consensus Conference on Work-Related Musculoskeletal Injuries (MSI) held May 2-3 in Dallas, Texas. The conference, hosted by the Society of Diagnostic Medical Sonography, brought together industry stakeholders to discuss ways to prevent MSI in those who use ultrasound imaging devices.

The conference attendees examined the prevalence of MSI within sonography, updated the industry standards created in 2003, and began developing a toolkit for sonographers and employers to use in the prevention of MSI.

By the end of the summer 2016, a draft of the updated industry standards will be distributed to the Consensus Conference participants for comments and edits. Once finalized, the updated standards will be distributed to industry organizations and manufacturers, who will have the opportunity to endorse or support the revised standards.
